1 A. I have. 2 Q. You have them there? 3 A. Yes. 4 Q. And would you like to 5 make any corrections to either of those reports? 6 A. I would like to make a 7 correction to chapter -- paragraph 19, sorry, of 8 my first report. 9 And if I may, specifically --10 I mention in that paragraph that there was three 11 actual or proposed coastal quarries in the 12 province involving marine terminals. In my -- in 13 preparation, I actually determined that there was 14 a fourth coastal quarry in the province, so just 15 the change will be that there's four actual 16 proposed coastal quarries that I am aware of in 17 the province involving a marine terminal. 18 The subsequent sentence says 19 the other two are Black Point Quarry near Canso. 20 That should say, "The other three are Black Point 21 Quarry near Canso (having been approved on 22 April 26, 2016)". 23 The one I hadn't mentioned 24 before was a proposal by Northumberland Rock in 25 Georgeville which was recommended for a focus report on February 28th, 1996, and subsequently withdrawn by the proponent.

And the fourth one was the Martin Marietta quarry at Porcupine Mountain, which predated the environmental assessment program.

O. So should we perhaps provide that in writing so that everybody's aware of the correction?

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: I think that would be good.

MR. NEUFELD: We will do that electronically for everybody.

Thank you very much. We will turn the floor over to Mr. Nash.

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY MR. NASH: O. Good morning, Mr. Geddes.

You say that you are the director of policy and planning at the Department of Natural Resources; is that right?

A. It's executive director of policy and planning and support services.

Q. When did you become that? A. I started in April of

	Page 641		Page 642
1	Q. And you're here as a	1	A. I did.
2	full-time paid employee of the Government of Nova	2	Q. In 2003, you were hired
3	Scotia?	3	as an environmental assessment officer; correct?
4	A. That is correct.	4	A. Correct.
5	Q. And you have been in that	5	Q. And that was in the Nova
6	for about 15 years?	6	Scotia Department of Environment and Labour;
7	A. About just over 16.	7	correct?
8	Q. And somebody wrote these	8	A. That's correct.

report. I didn't ask him one question about that. Re-examination is intended to address matters that arise in cross-examination. This did not arise.

MR. NEUFELD: I don't disagree with that at all. I am not intending whatsoever to go into Justice Cromwell's report. I would simply like to ask Mr. Geddes if he is aware of the report and has any disagreement with the legal interpretations provided by Justice Cromwell, which he, Mr. Geddes, applies on an everyday basis, or applied on an everyday basis.

MR. NASH: Well, he is not qualified to give an interpretation, in the first place. And the second place, there was nothing about Justice Cromwell's opinion that I raised in his cross-examination.

MR. NEUFELD: Again, I am not asking him for an interpretation. I am asking him if he agrees with the legal interpretation -- from his practical experience, the legal interpretation that Justice Cromwell did provide on how to interpret the Nova Scotia Act.

MR. NASH: It's just not part of his evidence, and he hasn't been asked about Page 710 PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: I think my impression is it's very difficult, of course, to make a distinction between interpretation of a document and an application just as a matter of experience. So, personally, if my colleagues agree, I would prefer if you stayed away from that.

MR. NEUFELD: That's fine, I don't -- we don't need to -- like I said, I wasn't planning on getting into it at all. The fact is that we filed, because Mr. Geddes is not a lawyer, we purposefully went out and sought a lawyer to provide an interpretation of the Act. That is before you, so it's for you to consider that interpretation, which has gone unchallenged because they have chosen not to cross-examine Justice Cromwell. But that's fine. I can move on.

BY MR. NEUFELD:

Q. Now, Mr. Geddes, you were asked about a number of -- the number of JRPs that took place in Nova Scotia; you recall that?

A. Um-hmm, yes.

Q. And, from your perspective as an experienced EA administrator in Nova Scotia, how does a JRP process compare, how does it differ from a provincial panel or provincial board?

A. Umm, well, they are largely the same in the sense that you have got independent experts who provide -- ultimately provide advice to the Minister on potential effects of a project. You know, some of the procedural steps might differ between -- for example, scoping hearings which were held for Whites Point Quarry, provincial panels don't typically do that. So some of the procedural steps might differ; but, really, at the end of the day, under both processes, you end up with a report, a recommendation to the decision-maker, at which point the Minister would ask to be briefed by staff and would get staff's advice on that report and make a decision.

Q. And you were involved in those processes?

A. Yes.

Q. Provided advice to the Minister in those processes?

A. I did, yes.

Q. Second, you were asked, at Tab 6 of the binder in front of you, you were

1 brought to Exhibit 331, which was a letter from 2 Paul Buxton to Minister Parent, and you were asked 3 about all the relevant factors that the Minister 4 would consider. You recall those questions from 5 Mr. Nash? 6

A. Yes.

O. Now, in the fifth paragraph of that letter, you will see where the Minister says he paid careful attention -- sorry, careful consideration of the panel's report; do you see that language there?

A. Correct.

Q. In your experience, is this usual for the Minister to look at the entire report, or would he just focus on the recommendation and accept the recommendation?

A. I think, in my experience, it would be the Minister would review the entire report, would be seeking staff advice at that point in time. And, you know, I have had Ministers at decision-making stages, not necessarily for panel reviews, ask for additional research to be done by staff to further our own advice to the Minister making the decision as

Page 713 Q. You were also asked a lot about the economic development, economic development as a goal of the Nova Scotia government. If you could, please, help us to understand how economic interests and economic concerns would be considered and balanced in the EA process. A. Well. I think it all comes back to the definition of environmental effect, which talks about both the positive and negative potential effects of projects. So within that, obviously the Minister -- and in accordance with the overall principles of the Act, to balance economic Minister -- and in accordance with the overall principles of the Act, to balance economic developments, environmental sustainability, the Minister would look at the positive impacts of a project, as well as potential impacts or adverse effects of the project. So both sides are considered at the decision stage.

Q. Where do these factor in in terms of the actual Act or the words that the Act uses?

A. Again, the Minister's decision is based on the potential for a project to result in significant environmental effects that can't be mitigated, so that's what the decision is based upon.

Q. This is a balancing that you would call sustainable development?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. You weren't -- the reason I am asking these follow-up questions is because you were specifically cut off and pointed simply to the promotional documents of the government, which we heard you to say wouldn't necessarily factor into an individual -- so just help us describe, what does factor into that decision, what does the Minister consider?

A. Well, the Minister -- if we are talking in the context of a panel report, whether it's a provincial panel report or whether it's a joint review panel report or even if it's a project that the environmental assessment has managed within the environmental assessment group itself in terms of developing report and recommendations, the things that get considered in the decision would be all the information in the environmental impact statement or registration document itself. If there is a report from the panel, that would be considered by the Minister.

. 1 . 1 . 0

Or if there's a report by the environmental assessment officer that managed the Class 1 project, that would be considered. There's always an in-person briefing with the Minister on all decisions provincially where the staff and administrator walk the Minister through the project, answer any questions. The Ministers have the opportunity to look at the public record at that point in time and can ask for -- to receive specific comments from government agencies or the general public comment index. So there's a whole range of pieces that get considered. But there's also written recommendation from staff that's provided to the Minister at that stage as well.

MR. NEUFELD: Thank you.

Let me just confer with my colleagues for one second.

Thank you. Those are all my questions.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Thank you, Mr. Neufeld.

Any, Mr. Nash?

MR. NASH: Nothing arising.
PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: I think that gets us to tribunal questions. Professor

Schwartz has the floor.

QUESTIONS BY THE ARBITRAL TRIBUNAL:

PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: Good morning. Could I take you to paragraph 9 of your rejoinder report. You are talking about some other projects that ended up not passing the environmental due process in Nova Scotia?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: Just to further my understanding, I looked at the exhibits and so on, and I couldn't quite figure out a few of these things.

The first one that's mentioned there, the Blue Mountain Quarry, so there was a public review process there that involved public hearings?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it was a provincial-only panel that involved public hearings.

PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: What did the assessment board itself recommend? Did the Minister do something different from the assessment board?

THE WITNESS: The Minister accepted the recommendation.

Page 717 Page 718 1 1 PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: Okay. rewrite them or reorganize them to more accurately 2 2 reflect our ability to monitor them and ensure Now, in your practical experience -- again, I am 3 3 not asking a legal question because the law allows that the proponent complies with them. In the 4 4 Ministers to add terms and conditions or to come process of doing that, sometimes additional 5 5 conditions might present themselves to address to a different decision than the board. Were you 6 6 involved in some cases where the Minister some of those issues. 7 7 stipulated additional terms and conditions that PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: Okay, so 8 8 were different from what a board recommended, an vou mentioned that sometimes the Minister would 9 9 assessment board? tweak or add or subtract from a board 10 THE WITNESS: Yes. And I can 10 recommendation. What about coming to an outright 11 11 say there's been cases where the Minister has not different conclusion, in your experience, were 12 12 included conditions that were recommended by a there cases where a board recommended approval and 13 panel and decided not to include those as well, 13 a Minister decided on rejection? 14 14 THE WITNESS: I have never too. 15 15 PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ: So, in been involved in a panel report or -- either at 16 16 the provincial level or the two joint review your experience, it's gone both ways, sometimes 17 17 Ministers does not proceed with the term and panels, obviously, one of the -- only one of those 18 conditions stipulated by the board and sometimes 18 I was involved in, where that's happened. Are you aware of any studies that have found that blasting on land has caused any right whale mortality? A. I am not aware of studies, but the lack of studies does not mean there have not been adverse effects on whales. Q. If you go over to the second page, 2621, the next page, it starts out under "Vessel Strikes": "Right whales are known to be especially susceptible to vessel strikes."[as read] And it goes on. No, which is interesting. Q. Yes, it is very interesting. Are you aware of the scientific evidence that's been produced which shows that the right whale population is migrating north to the Gulf of St. Lawrence and towards Newfoundland, and that there were 12 right whale mortalities last summer. Nine of them were in the St. Lawrence sorry, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and three of them were near Newfoundland. Were you aware of that? A. I am aware of where the mortalities took place. Q. Yes? A. I have heard the theory, and I don't think that you and I should be debating this without something in front of us, and that's for other people to discuss anyway, but I have heard the theory that climate change may be causing whales to travel further afield in search

But in the context of a very endangered species, a very low population, four whales is nonetheless quite a concern. Q. Yes, so in order to completely protect that very rare species, you would really have to stop all shipping because there's always a possibility; isn't that correct? A. Uh, uh, yes, well I didn't conclude that all shipping should be stopped. I mean, we are seeing now that there is new regulations being brought in. They are not stopping shipping, but they are talking about lowering the speed still further. But, you know, that's not that has happened since I wrote my report. Q. That has happened since you wrote your report? A. Yes, yes. And there have been a lot of whales killed since I wrote my	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	A. holding a hearing that provides opportunity for people to give their views and opinions and for the proponent to present their information and for everybody to ask questions. And they are responsible for making sure that all information that is provided is publicly accessible, it's placed on the public registry. When the hearing ends, the public registry closes, and then the proponent -- sorry, not the proponent, the panel is responsible for preparing a report which provides advice to the two Ministers, the federal and provincial Minister in the case of a JRP.

Q. And you mentioned the panel's role in gathering information. And from what sources do they gather this information?

A. The main source of information?

A. The main source of information initially comes from the proponent, so the proponent is asked to provide information that responds to the EIS guidelines. There is then a, there is a public comment opportunity that they can respond to what the proponents put forward. In terms of does this meet the guidelines, is there sufficient information, that's the key focus of that stage. The panel is then -- seeks to address any gaps that may have been identified either by the panel or through -- by other participants, who could be government or could be the public. Any gaps that are identified, the panel would then go back to the proponent and ask for additional information.

Q. And in terms of the information that is gathered, in your experience, can scientific opinions differ amongst different experts?

A. Yes, that's entirely possible.

Q. And so Mr. Nash also put to you a number of DFO submission in the Whites Point EA record. Based on your experience, are government submissions the only basis for a review panel's determination of likely SAEE?

A. No, the panel is required to address, carefully consider all the information that comes before them. So that information could come from any number of sources, including, it could be local residents, it could be holders of traditional ecological knowledge, Aboriginal knowledge. It could be from experts who are scientific experts who come forward on behalf of environmental organizations or municipalities.

I am not sure I can compare those qualifications to those of Mr. Estrin directly. Q. Have you heard of Mr. Estrin before this proceeding? A. Actually, I believe I had not, no. Q. Did you read his CV carefully before writing your opinion? A. I did review it, yes. Q. If you turn to Tab 1, your first report at page 15, paragraph 45. A. Yes. Q. The beginning of paragraph 45: "Furthermore, I find Mr. Estrin's statement that 'no federal or provincial government agency or official took	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	not be approved or that, after mitigation, it would likely cause SAEE' "[as read] You say "to be unpersuasive". A. Yes. Q. You weren't persuaded by Mr. Estrin's opinion? A. That would be correct, yes. Q. And I am going to suggest to you that you are not qualified to find anything Mr. Estrin says to be unpersuasive or otherwise. A. Well, in response, I would only say that I believe I am qualified to have a personal opinion on that matter. Q. Would you be qualified to have a personal opinion like anybody would be qualified to have a personal opinion; fair enough? A. Well, fair enough, but based on some extensive experience with environmental assessment in this particular instance.

Mr. Nash has presented a document to the tribunal by describing its content in detail, and he purported to read from it by holding it up. Now, the document was published long before the claimants filed their reply submissions, and they didn't exhibit it, and we feel that the proceedings have been tainted as a result. So there's been, again, disrespect for the rules, the rules that have governed this issue that we've dealt with now three times, and we're at a loss as to what to do. We think that the relevant testimony needs to be stricken from the record,

- Q. And you would understand that those goals, objectives, and reasonable expectations are expressed collectively through Nova Scotia statutes, regulations, and policies?
 - A. Yes.
- Q. And that a fair and proper environmental assessment of a project in Nova Scotia must apply the stated policies of the Government of Nova Scotia?
 - A. Must apply all the policies.

Q. The stated policies of the Government of Nova Scotia?

A. I'm not sure I can agree with that statement, because I think my opinion would be that some of the policies are, in some sense, conflicting. I'm not sure you can apply them all simultaneously to any one thing.

Were you aware before today, then, that the JRP told Bilcon that the JRP would determine the likelihood of the project causing significant adverse environmental effects? A. I don't know that I can say whether or not I recall it exactly. Q. Okay. Would you agree, now having seen at least part of this document, that that's what they were intending to do? A. It's apparent that that was, yes. Q. Were you aware before today that the JRP advised Bilcon that the project determined a component of the project sorry, if the JRP determined a component of the project would cause a significant adverse environmental effect, that the panel would then decide whether

I may have looked at a few parts of the transcripts when reviewing some of the expert reports of Ms. Griffiths and Dr. Blouin, but that would be quite limited. Q. And do you recall what parts of the transcript you did review? A. I can't recall. I would have, on occasion, checked some of their references, and there were references to the transcript. So I just can't recall exactly which	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20	submitted to the Minister and then also to give my opinion on what the likely decision might be of the government in looking at the report in the absence of the NAFTA breach. So that, of course, meant that I did not review all of the material on the record. It was not necessary. Q. So your opinion was focused on providing information and advice about government procedures leading to a cabinet decision after receiving a JRP report; that's correct? A. That is one part of my report, yeah or my two reports, yes. Q. And you're speaking about this from the standpoint as having not been involved at all in this JRP process and the decision-making within government for this JRP process, as you were not with government when this JRP process was being dealt with? It's the Federal Environmental Assessment Process, A Guide and Critique. Q. And did you read the book for the purpose of rendering this opinion, or did you read it out of general interest? A. Oh, I had read it before I became engaged in this project. In fact, I have I believe I wrote the preface to his book. Q. Right. A. Yeah. Q. So you have known Professor Doelle for 25 years? A. It could be that long. When I became vice president at the agency, he was there working as one of my staff members for a short period of time. In Footnote 24, on page 13, you identify Meinhard Doelle as Professor of Law and Associate Dean at Dalhousie University Law School. You say: "He has been involved in the practice of environmental law in Nova Scotia since 1990 and, in that capacity, served as a drafter of the Nova Scotia Environment Act and as a policy advisor on the CEAA Act in 1992."[as read] Are you somewhat of a disciple of Professor Doelle? A. Uh I, umm, I would say no. I'm aware of Professor Doelle, actually, and his thoughts in this case are similar to mine in terms of the breadth of the scope of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act. Q. If you go to page 15 of

of preparing a memoranda to Cabinet, then there's a whole cottage industry that, in effect, comes into play here. And it's the same regardless of what the issue is.

So what would happen is that it would start out at a level of, of policy and probably mid-level within the department, but it would go right up to the top. It would go right up. The briefing note eventually that would be prepared for the Minister of that particular department would be seen by the Deputy Minister as well, so it goes right up through the system, if that's what you're getting at.

Q. That's what I'm getting

It's a briefing note that ultimately -- well, it would go to the Deputy Minister, but also the Minister would be aware of it in that department if that Minister sits on the particular Cabinet committee. And this one would have gone to what is known as the operations committee at that time, and it was a pretty broadly based committee.

Q. Okay. Then you have got a diamond below your circle, and it says:

"The responsible authority accepts the report."[as read]

A. Um-hmm.

Q. And that would be -- that

Now, we have no access to the memorandum -- or, sorry, the ministerial recommendation, because that is the main piece of the Cabinet document, but the background analysis document shows some very interesting things, I think, and include -- and provides information that led me to believe that, when I saw it, that the RAs considered the document to be complete. asked you about the department's consultations on the effects of the project. Is it your view that government decision-makers can make determinations of significance on the effects of the project independent of the report?

MR. NASH: Well, that's a directly leading question. This is redirect examination. The witness is being asked for a new opinion. There's no new opinion admissible at this stage, and it's a leading question.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Could you please rephrase the question?

MR. KLAVER: Sure.

BY MR. KLAVER:

Q. So Mr. Nash asked about the department's consultations on the effects of the report. What type of decisions can the departments make regarding the effects?

A. Right. Well, the -- as I have indicated in my report, the Governor in Council has, in my view, a fair bit of discretion, and the Honourable John Evans has, in his report, which has not -- for which he has not been cross-examined has, of course, concluded the same thing. So, yes, a department or the responsible authorities under CEAA 1992 are required to, first of all, respond to the report and seek the approval of the Governor in Council. So they may or may not agree with the findings of the joint review panel. They might say, "Look, there are additional significant adverse effects here, or, in our view, there are not", because I know when the Act was first developed, it was very clear. No department, no Minister wanted to give an environmental assessment panel the authority to make decisions. They wanted these panels to be advisory, so, therefore, they have the opportunity to say yes or no, we agree or disagree with your findings. And I do cite in my report the -- an example of that, which is the Northern Gateway Project, where the Governor in Council, in fact, found additional significant adverse environmental effects beyond those found by the joint review panel.

Q. Okay. Now, Mr. Nash also asked you about, following from this question, looking beyond the environmental effects under the Act. Can you explain what such factors would be and how they would play into Cabinet's decision-making process?

There's also -- Canada's decision with regards to the project 10 10 effects if there is no SAEE. What level of reference to the implications of the decision on 11 discretion do decision-makers have in that 11 the province, in this case the province of Nova 12 12 Scotia. So, again, an indication of some of the circumstance? 13 broader elements that would be taken into account 13 A. 1 you, Mr. Klaver. Mr. Nash. 2 FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. NASH: 3 Q. You indicated in response 4 to Mr. Klaver's questions that the Governor in 5 Council can accept or reject recommendations from 6 a joint review panel; correct? 7 A. The simple chart shows 8 that, but... 9 Q. Isn't that your 10 understanding? 11 A. As I clarified with -- in 12 response to Mr. Klaver and as I cite in the 13 Northern Gateway Project, we actually have an 14 example there where the Governor in Council found 15 additional significant adverse environmental 16 effects beyond those found by the joint review 17 panel, so... 18 Q. So the Governor in 19 Council can -- are you saying can do whatever it 20 wants? 21 A. Well, it has to operate, 22 obviously, within the limitations of the statute. 23 Q. Right. 24 A. There has to be some 25 linkage to the statute. And it would appear that, in this instance, I referred to with Northern Gateway -- this is the pipeline project proposed from Alberta to Kitimat and for oil from the oil sands in Alberta, a very controversial project obviously. And, in that particular case, it looks to me like the Governor in Council, on the basis of the evidentiary record, did find additional significant adverse effects beyond those recommended by the panel. In fact, that panel had found two significant adverse environmental effects on grizzly bears and caribou but, in spite of that, had recommended the project be justified in the circumstances. The present government looked at that more carefully and found additional significant adverse environmental effects and concluded it was not justified in the circumstances and refused the project's approval.

Q. Understood. How many JRP reports have gone to Cabinet?

A. Well, every one would.

Q. Yeah. How many is that?A. When I last looked at the particularly going to a witness' essential credibility.

And, in our submission, as a matter of fundamental domestic and international law principle, the scope of cross-examination is necessarily broad, and a broad scope is essential for cross-examination to properly serve its function as an engine of truth finding. Cross-examination is critical, more specifically, for testing the veracity, truthfulness and the credibility of a witness. And information, in our submission, relevant to a witness' veracity, truthfulness and credibility is a proper basis for questions on cross-examination and should not be barred, particularly for procedural purposes.

It goes directly, in our submission, to the tribunal's ability to fully assess the reliability of the testimony that's put before you.

Indeed, in our submission, the breadth and the scope of cross-examination is, in fact, reflected in Procedural Order 25. Under section 4.3, the only limitation on the scope of cross-examination is "to issues relevant to the witnesses' or experts' written or oral evidence", that's the expressed limitation on

2 cross-examination. And, in our submission, 3 there's nothing in Procedural Order 25, 4.3, that

4 precludes the use of outside writings in

5 formulating cross-examination questions or 6 approaches or that provides any additional 7 constraints on counsel's approach to 8 cross-examination. And there are measures to control fairness, I am going to come to that.

Procedural Order 25, section 6.1, deals, of course, with documents. And while it prohibits a document from being presented, that's the term, "presented", at a hearing -- at the hearing, absent agreement or leave of the tribunal, Procedural Order 25, section 6.1, does not define the term "present" and nor does it address cross-examination. If you look, though, in our submission, Judge Simma and members of the tribunal, to Procedural Order 25, section 5.4. there's a distinction made there between presenting documents and referring to documents. And that distinction is in the context of the parties leading their valuators. And there,

24 Procedural Order 25, section 5.4, prohibits each 25 party's valuation experts in their principal

During the cross-examination of 4 4 And, in our submission, the Mr. Forestieri, you will recall, Mr. Forestieri 5 5 was asked about changes to the US Tax Act. That's use of the term "refer" in that provision is 6 6 material and is important, and it's distinct from not in the record. He was asked about those 7 7 "present". It's referring to documents not in the questions; no objection was taken. He dealt with 8 them as a matter of cross-examination, and that 8 record. That is expressly prohibited. 9 9 Procedural Order 25, 5.4, does was -- it was taken that it was a line of 10 10 not deal with cross-examination. It does not cross-examination that Canada chose, and I note as 11 11 contain a similar express prohibition against the well that Canada referenced those amendments in 12 12 party referring to any new documents not already their opening statement. 13 13 on the record on cross-examination. going to refer to, I think in case of Mr. McLean, and to render a judgment whether there is any, let's say, prejudice involved or unfair or lack of fairness.

So, again, to make a long story short, the tribunal would like to see the documents that Mr. Nash wants to refer to and assess these documents before we finally decide what to do with them.

MR. SCOTT LITTLE: My reaction is that we would, indeed, request a recess in the event that those documents can be relied upon so that we can review them with Mr. McLean.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: I think that's probably fair. Unfortunately/fortunately, it's late again, so that might be, that might be feasible. Could we maybe have Mr. Cromwell --Mr. Cromwell is not involved with this, so could we then turn the sequence and hear Mr. Cromwell and maybe then have --

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Yes. MR. NASH: Shall we leave it that, today, we will not refer Mr. McLean to any new documents, so, for today's purpose, no new documents will be presented or referred to specifically. I will simply ask him questions regarding factual matters. If there's something arising from those factual matters and his answers to those questions that relates to the documents, we can deal with that tomorrow. And, in the meantime, if there was something from our perspective that might require, in order to have procedural fairness, to have another document or documents entered into as exhibits, even for identification purposes, and, of course, to have my friends and the tribunal review them beforehand and to make submissions on them. I think we can deal with that separately from the actual cross-examination because the facts that I am going to ask Mr. McLean questions about, indeed, are confirmed in documents, and I want to ask him questions about those things, and it may be that he confirms exactly what's in the documents. And these are documents that refer to matters that were raised, from our perspective, for the first time in his statement, in his rejoinder statement. But for today's purpose, I won't refer to any documents. I will ask him about facts, and then we will see where we are. And it may be that there's no issue.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Is that acceptable?

MR. SCOTT LITTLE: No. I still have a concern. Because the facts, just as we saw earlier today, could be derived from the report, the reply, rejoinder reports that were attempted to be filed as evidence and were not allowed in. And that paragraph 1 of the January 26th of the letter says they may not accordingly be relied upon at the forthcoming hearing.

And as I have already noted, we have been very careful not to provide these documents, the reports and all the supporting exhibits to our witnesses so that they don't get tainted by these documents that shouldn't have been filed in the first place or attempted to be filed without leave.

So I am caught in kind of a concerning situation here because all indicators are, because these documents that were attempted to be filed and they've dealt with the McLean report, the facts that Mr. Nash is going to put to Mr. McLean are based on those documents. And, again, I will say it one more time, we did not let any of our witnesses see those documents, to avoid tainting the process. So I do have a concern with respect to that approach.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Well, since there doesn't seem to come about any agreement on that point, I think I fall back on my, the idea before, that maybe -- not maybe, but that, today, we now turn to Mr. Cromwell -- and if necessary -- again, problem? Or Mr. Bickford, I think. And then you have all evening and night to find a solution to the document problem, and we have Mr. McLean the first witness tomorrow morning.

MR. SCOTT LITTLE: I guess my question is what process is going to be followed now tonight with respect to the intended cross of Mr. McLean? I am in your hands, but I have registered my concern.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Maybe

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: That is cross-examination at this point because it has not right. That means you are fine.

MR. JOHNSTON: Thank you.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Right, I think we are ready to go into, to return to the discussion of the problem that we had before, and I give the floor to my colleague.

PROFESSOR McRAE: Thank you, Mr. President.

We took a bit of time before because we are not entirely sure that we understood all of the issues that were involved.

We gave our ruling in respect of what has already been said in cross-examination this morning in relation to Ms. Griffiths.

But the question is now, how do we go ahead? As we understand it -- maybe I am misunderstanding something. As we understand it, the question now is to learn from Mr. Nash what is it in terms of potential documents or new evidence he plans to use in the cross-examination of Mr. McLean. And then if we know that, we can then get a better assessment of whether it falls under on that, whether it falls under the rules of procedure or whether it falls under the decision the tribunal already made. But in order to get that, to that point, I think we need to understand what it is we are talking about. Are we talking about documents, are we talking about evidence that is going to be relied upon? That wasn't entirely clear to us.

Now, is that a way to proceed, then, if we hear from Mr. Nash first, or has Canada still got concerns about even proceeding this way?

MR. SCOTT LITTLE: The tribunal has made a ruling on both the reports and the documents, so everything that was contained in the January 17th e-mail with reply rejoinder reports, the tribunal has made a ruling on that. That information, documents, witness statements, evidence, was not entered into the record. The tribunal's already made a ruling on that, so I am not sure how Mr. Nash can convey that information to you now if it's already been rejected for filing without prejudicing or potentially tainting the process.

PROFESSOR McRAE: I guess it was the lack of clarity as to what he is going to rely on that wouldn't allow us to even get to that point. We are trying to get to the point where we can actually discuss that, so Mr. Nash.

MR. NASH: Thank you,

Professor McRae.

there is no issue.

In cross-examination, both sides can ask questions which go to the issues in the case which refers to written evidence or oral evidence of a witness. And as Mr. Johnston said, it goes to questions of credibility about what's in a statement, and it's cross-examination. And just as Mr. Forestieri had put to him a proposition that the Canada/US tax treaty had been revoked or was about to be revoked, which came up yesterday, and had put to him specific tax treaties going from 39 per cent to 37 per cent, not in evidence, there's no document in evidence to support that, it's our position that we can put to Mr. McLean certain facts on cross-examination. He either confirms those facts or he does not confirm those facts.

If he confirms the facts.

If he does not confirm those facts, then the question becomes, should there be documents considered, even as exhibits for identification, which is often done before they are admitted into evidence, should documents be considered which controvert the facts that he has attested to? And it's only at that stage when the documents become any issue at all.

The question of the facts, they relate to the issues in this case, they relate to his witness statement, they relate to the facts in his witness statement. He can be cross-examined on those facts without reference to any documents. It's if he fails to agree with certain facts which are in documents and can be confirmed to be in documents, in some cases DFO documents, which he should be considered to be aware of or can confirm, then the issue of what to do with the documents arises, and only then.

So we can go through the entire cross-examination without reference to one document, we can refer to statements made, we can refer to facts. This particularly concerns the migration of right whales. I will give you some forewarning. The question of DFO's knowledge

1 about the migration of right whales from Bay of 2 Fundy up north, the eastern side of Nova Scotia 3 into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, which is an 4 unexplained phenomenon, but it is a phenomenon 5 that the right whales have exited the Bay of 6 Fundy. It affects the question of the impact of 7 shipping on the case of a risk of harm to right 8 whales, shipping from Whites Point as distinct, 9 for example, shipping on the eastern side of Nova Scotia, which is where Black Point is located. And there's evidence from Mr. McLean and there's a document. I believe it's Exhibit R 769, which shows a map with a heavy concentration of right whale sightings in the Bay of Fundy, and there's all sorts of disclaimers to that map, very few sightings around Black Point, and so he makes the distinction that there is. it's a different environment, it's a different situation you are dealing with and, therefore, right whale situations can be dealt with separately and differently by the authorities, whether it be a JRP or a comprehensive study for Black Point. And the map shows just a few dots.

But there's another side to that story, and that side is not told in his witness statement and it's

1 an incomplete story, and we have not had an 2 opportunity, because of the fact that that witness 3 statement was first introduced as part of the 4 rejoinder memorial, we have not had an opportunity 5 to test the facts, and those are just some of 6 them, in Mark McLean's witness statement. 7

So that's what it's about, and it doesn't require the introduction of new documents unless there's disagreement with the facts, the evidence, in those documents that is required. So my, my suggestion is that we do the cross-examination and we see where we are at the end of the cross-examination, and that if there's further submission to be made on the introduction for procedural fairness to the investors on whether certain documents should be admitted, and they can be introduced as, say, exhibits for identification, then, then the hour or so that we have invested in this procedural issue, I think, becomes a non-issue. But I think we can deal with it at the end of the cross-examination.

And I don't intend to refer specifically to documents. I intend to refer to facts that are perfectly and properly put before the witness to test the reliability and credibility of his witness statement.

PROFESSOR McRAE: Can I ask you just one question. Does this potential -- I understand the process you have laid out as a way to proceed, but does this potentially involve asking the tribunal to reconsider what it's already said about documents that were put forward and then not allowed by the tribunal to be added to the record?

MR. NASH: It may. I am thinking likely not. But we would cross that bridge when we came to it. That would be my suggestion of proceeding forward in an orderly way. And it would be at that point, there wouldn't be -- if my friends from Canada wish to do some re-examination on those documents, that would be another possibility. The tribunal may say at the end, we are not allowing those documents in. Of course, we respect that, but it's a decision, in my submission, that does not have to be made now because we are looking at an abstract, potential non-problem. And so the timing, in my submission, for dealing with this is at the end of Mr. McLean's cross-examination. And, in the meantime, I give my assurance that I will not refer to actual documents in terms of "you said in this document or somebody said in this document", I won't be doing that.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR:

Mr. Little?

MR. SCOTT LITTLE: I think this is just allowing for a tainted process to unfold. The tribunal's already made a ruling on these documents and these facts that Mr. Nash might wish to read into the record in order to do the cross-examination of Mr. McLean. It's too late once they have been introduced. And if it was unfair to us three weeks ago to have them introduced as information, it's certainly more unfair now for the information to be allowed into the record and then for cross-examination to unfold and then for a decision to be made after the cross-examination as to whether those facts or those documents that might be put into the record should have been put into the record. So I don't view that as an acceptable solution.

Mr. Nash is certainly entitled to probe the strength of the McLean statement as the ruling states, as any cross-examiner would,

1 but he shouldn't be allowed to read into the 2 evidence, as the basis for his questioning, to 3 read into the evidence that goes in before this 4 tribunal as a basis of his question -- of his 5 questioning, new facts, new facts that can be 6 derived from documents or facts that can be 7 derived from anything that was contained in the 8 materials that were attempted to be filed and were 9 not allowed to be filed. 10

MR. NASH: If I could just say, in my submission, that position is completely wrong. In any ordinary cross-examination, you can put a fact to a witness. He either agrees with it or she agrees with it or she doesn't. An example is the proposition that was put to Mr. Connelly regarding the number of JRPs. He either confirms it or not. It's a fact that can be, is relevant to this case, it's relevant to --very relevant to a number of aspects of this case. He either confirms it or he does not, and that's the end of it.

In the case of the question of the tax treaty and the taxation rate and the revocation of the treaty, that's not in the record. There's no document. There's no question of it being improper to ask Mr. Forestieri about whether or not the tax treaty has been revoked, that has implication for the case. He was asked that, he gave his answer, he either does know or he doesn't know, and that's it, that's what's on the record.

So the fact that it's put to a witness with respect to a proposition made in cross-examination is just that, it's a fact that's put to a witness. And the witness can either confirm it or he says he doesn't know or he denies it and says, no, that's wrong. That's the purpose of cross-examination. It has a broad scope. It has a broad scope within the context of the issues in the case and the issues that the witness has attested to. And to now constrain the scope of cross-examination under some false notion that there were documents that related to it that the documents themselves are not in the record, that's one thing, but to constrain the cross-examination under the guise of document rejection is completely wrong, in my submission. There's no merit to that. My friends have not followed that procedure, we have not followed that procedure. No objection was made when Mr. Forestieri was asked questions about documents that were not on the record and no objection should be made in this regard. They are facts, that's all. And it goes to credibility and reliability of the witness' evidence.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Give us a moment. We don't need to go out.
--- Off-the-record discussion.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR:

Mr. Nash, so this is a problem, but so you are going to ask questions, right, all you do is ask questions?

MR. NASH: Correct.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: If the witness gives a reply in a way which doesn't satisfy you, you are not going to do what you did with the number of JRPs; that is, well, if I tell you there were this and this, but you will keep that, you will retain that for a separate stage?

MR. NASH: Yes.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: At the end of the cross-examination?

MR. NASH: Yes.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Which means the cross-examination, as such, would go without that the problem arising, and it could be to your satisfaction.

MR. NASH: Yes.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: And then we would, the issue would be moot; is that correct?

MR. NASH: That's my intention.

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: So then I just wonder whether we couldn't just engage in the cross-examination and see whether you really master that task. If not, you wouldn't go beyond asking questions.

MR. NASH: I will do my best. And I am sure my friends will be on to me, I am sure Mr. Little will be on to me if I don't master it, but I -- and this is, by the way, it's a distinct part of the end of the cross-examination. It's 10 per cent of the cross-examination, 90 per cent of it doesn't --

PRESIDING ARBITRATOR:

Time-wise?

MR. NASH: Time-wise. Ninety per cent of it doesn't deal with this at all. PRESIDING ARBITRATOR: Okay.
